On August 27, 2016, seven riders representing Team Raymond James set out on a two-day, 260-km charity bike ride from Vancouver to Seattle in the Ride to Conquer Cancer 2016. This marks the sixth year of participation for the team. In 2016 they raised a whopping $50,723, bringing their running team total to more than $350,000 since their first year of participation in 2011. Congratulations to the riders for another successful campaign!

Huge credit went to Jay Dowhaniuk for his monster effort in raising more than $20,000 and achieving "Ambassador" status. Jay lost his business partner and family friend Paul Johnson to pancreatic cancer in early 2016, so this Ride to Conquer Cancer carried extra weight for him. This video by Global News tells Jay's fundraising story.
